Curriculum

In Maths this week, we have concentrated on the quick recall of x and division facts. The children are all working at their own level on this. We have been using dice to generate numbers, using our knowledge to solve word problems. Tables are so important to practise, how about using a long car journey to improve their speed of recall? There are a plethora of great multiplication tables websites on the internet, that really appeal to the children. We are concentrating on collating all our written work and preparing them for our topic books.
