English: Adverbs, adjectives and compound sentences have been the focus of year 3's literacy lessons this week. Can your child give you three adjective to describe a volcano?

Maths: The children have worked hard this week using a variety of resources to support developing understanding of addition. This has been very successful with children becoming far more accurate in their work.

Geography: We began to delve into our geography topic this week by discovering what our planet is made from and getting an overview of the major volcanic regions.

Science: We launched our new science topic this week with a carousel of activities. We were investigating how sound is made. It was great fun as we experimented with elastic bands, string telephones and tuning forks.

Christmas Carols for Addison Court Residents

On Thursday 18th December we would love the children to come back to school by 4:30pm so that they can visit our elderly neighbours at Addison Court. The children will have made some Christmas cards and gifts and sing some carols. We expect this will take no longer than 40 minutes and they can be picked up at 5:10pm.
